Counting Down To Freedom!

If you have been following the Camel recently you will be aware that I get out of this job come Twelfth Night. By the time September Coronet comes around, I will have chosen and announced a successor. Following that, I'll be commencing a phased transfer of Crux resources and responsibilities to the poor sod, so that by the time January comes around he/she will be functioning as Crux in all but name. During that three month period of transfer, there will be some unavoidable confusion and delay in the conduct of business. (That is, of course, in addition to the normal confusion and delay you have all come to expect of me. (I wish that was a joke.)) The most immediate result will be that, effective from October 1st, all submissions will get their preliminary review from my successor, and should be addressed to him/her. Don't worry if you send it to me out of habit - I'll be forwarding mail regularly.

What I ask of you all is that you cut my replacement some slack for the first few month of the office. Please avoid threatening letters and 10.00 PM phone calls until he/she has a grip on the job.

Before you ask - Yes, I have recieved an acceptable offer of a successor. I'm not telling you who the poor soul is yet because the deadline for applications has not yet closed, and it is theoretically concievable that I might get a better offer.

Sundry Bits and Pieces

The Camel this month does not have any summarised commentary due unexpected problems that I won't go into. Next months issue is expected to include two sets of such commentary. In addition, Vesper has now arranged to send me the minutes of the Vesper meetings on disk, and is sending me the minutes of the last three months or so that we have missed. This issue may be a bit thin, but the next couple will probably make up for it.

Voices from the Wilderness

An apology is due here. Sir Kane Greymane sent the following letter in late April. It arrived and immediately got misfiled. It is reproduced here four months late. (Perhaps you can see why I'm not extending my term of office. These administrative failures are bad for buisness.)

HOPE AND HEARTBREAK.

CRUX AUSTRALIS MEETING OF JULY 3RD 1994.

SCA name : Elayne Montjoy

Mundane name : Dawn Elson

Group : Abertridwr

This submission : change of registered name from Eibhleann O'Ceileachair

Money recieved : $15.00 for name

Permitted name changes : NO NAME CHANGES AT ALL WITHOUT WRITTEN PERMISSION

History of Submission: The submitters previous name, together with her device of "Azure a demi-sun issuant from base Or on a chief argent three shamrocks vert" was registered by Laurel on Sept 29th 1990.

Citations / Documentation: The submitter has explained her reasons for seeking a change to this name at some length. Briefly, and in the order given - (a) she would like a name people can pronounce, (b) she tends to play in the late period English / Continental area now and would like a name appropriate for those spacetime coordinates, (c) wants to maintain an Irish link in the name and (d) wants to maintain a link with her mundane christian name. Documentation is provided for "Elayne" from Yonge, who gives it as the old Cambrian form of the Welsh "Ellen" and cites it "from early times." Creswells "Bloomsbury Dictionary of First Names" derives the Elaine either from the Welsh 'Elain' or as an old French form of 'Helen'. Withycombe gives Elayne as derived from the old French form of Helen. He further states that it wasn't used as an ordinary Christian name until after 1859. The submitter contends that the name was known to people in period through fiction and legend, and there is no reason to suppose that it was not used.

Documentation for "Montjoy" is given from Bardsley "A Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames", who cites 'Montjoy' from a marriage license from 1610. Reaney cites 'Montjoie' as a placename in Normandy, from which was derived the surnames 'Mountjoye' (1307), 'Munjoye' (1243) and various forms of de Mungay, etc.

Photocopies of all these references are provided.

Crux Commentary: The "Montjoy" component is quite satisfactorily documented by that marriage license. Although the SCA's cutoff date is 1600, we accept documented material from up to 1650 as compatible with our late period. The "Elayne" component is slightly shakier. The fiction and legend referred to by the submitter is Malory's "Mort d'Arthur" and other chansons de geste. While the name was definitely known in period, Elayne only came into common use after Tennyson wrote "Idylls of the King" in 1859, when he lifted the story of Lancelot and Elayne from Malory and dusted it off for a 19th century audience. However, Laurel has registered the name recently (Elayne Frampton, Oct 1991), and I am unaware of any precedent or rules change that would make the name unacceptable now.

Recommendation: Pass name to Vesper.

Consulting herald: David de Saxby.

SCA name : Francois Henri Guyon

Mundane name : Shayne Lynch

Group : Politarchopolis.

This submission : device resub to Crux

Money recieved : not required for a resubmission.

Blazon : Argent two bars gemel flory counterflory and a base azure.

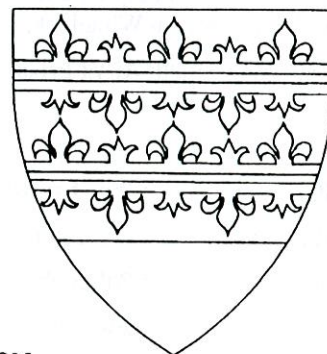

Permitted device changes : NO DEVICE CHANGES AT ALL WITHOUT WRITTEN PERMISSION

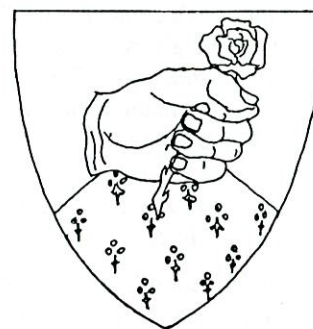

History of Submission: Francois' last resubmission "Argent two bars flory counterflory azure" was returned by Crux in April 1994 for conflict with Pearce "Argent two bars azure" (Papworth p.47). This was a permitted alternate at the time that appeared to be free of conflict and was returned so the submitter could draw it up.

Crux Commentary: It's clear.

Recommendation: Pass to Vesper.

Consulting herald: Giles Leabrook.

Consulting herald: Giles Leabrook

SCA name : Jonathon de Hadleigh

Mundane name : Jonathon Knight

Group : Abertridwr

This submission : new device, name in process.

Money recieved : $15.00 for device

Blazon : Per pale azure and gules a jester's head in belled cowl or.

Permitted device changes : Notes to scribe: "No black outlines. Please draw bells two on azure and two on gules". NO DEVICE CHANGES AT ALL WITHOUT WRITTEN PERMISSION

History of Submission: Jonathons name was recently passed to Vesper from Crux.

Crux Commentary: About those notes to scribes. It won't be obvious from the mini-emblazon (which I had to draw up), but Jonathon has, indeed, drafted this design without any black outlines whatsoever, using lines for internal detail only. Shifting one of the bells on the neck to the other side will be a definite improvement of balance, although heraldically insignificant. The style seems acceptable. ALthough there a quite a few fields per pale azure and gules 'round the ridges, his single charge is unique enough to clear all conflicts.

Recommendation: Pass to Vesper.

Consulting herald: not listed.

SCA name : Katherine Alicea of Sarum

Mundane name : Kim Maynard

Group : River Haven

This submission : new name, new device

Money recieved : $15.00 for name, $15.00 for device

Blazon : Vert a bend bevilled between in bend sinister a swan naiant and a quarterfoil knot or.

Permitted name changes : Language of name is given as English

Permitted device changes : Notes to scribe: "The quarterfoil knot is drawn with the lobes in saltire."

Citations / Documentation: "Katherine - see Withycombe. Alicea - see Withycombe under Alice." No photocopies are provided. Sarum is documented by photocopies from the Encyclopaedia Britannica showing Sarum to be the Anglo-Saxon name for Salisbury in England.

Crux Commentary: Withycombe p.186 gives Katherine as one of the chief variant spellings of a name best known from St. Katherine, of 'Katherine Wheel' fame. On p.15 it is noted that the name Alice was being latinised as 'Alicia' in the 12th century. Withycombe does not document the spelling as used by the submitter, (Alicea). Still, the name comes in a wide range of variations, pronunciations and spellings, and this seems to me to be within the established range of variation.-eg. Alice, Aliz, Adaliz, Aaliz, Adalheidis, Alesia, Alicia, Alix, Athelesia, Alesia, Aelis, Alys, Alse. It would have been nice, though, if we had permission to make minor changes to spelling. The device appears to me to be in good style and free of conflict.

Recommendation: Pass name and device to Vesper.

Consulting herald: William Edward Castille.

SCA name : Rohese de Fairhurst

Mundane name : Meroe Cahill

Group : Stormhold

This submission : device resub to Crux

Money recieved : not required for a resubmission.

Blazon : Argent, ermined azure, issuant from the top of a fess, two trefoils sable.

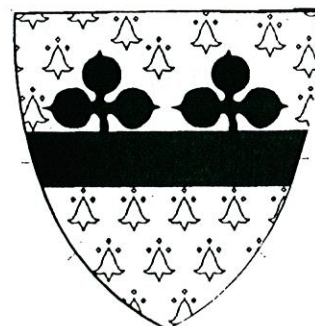

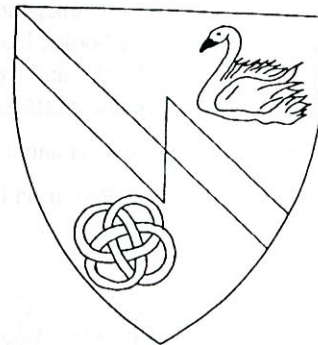

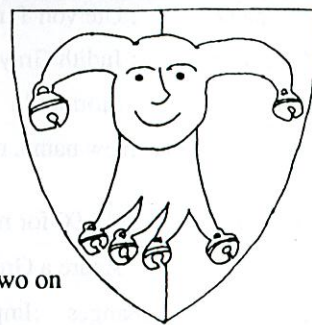

Permitted device changes : Important elements of the design are: charges, colours.

History of submission: Rohese's previous design of "Vair en point, issuant from the top of a fess two trefoils sable" was returned by Crux in February 1994, for problems with contrast as drafted. Rather than simply redraft, the submitter has redesigned the field.

Crux Commentary: The contrast problem has been solved, and there are no conflicts apparent.

Recommendation: Pass device on to Vesper.

Consulting herald: none listed.

Blazon : Azure a Greek sea sphinx and in chief three cloved lemons or cloved sable.

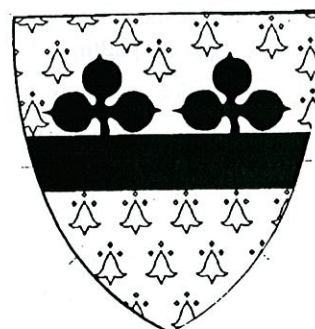

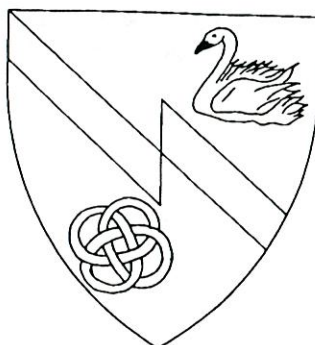

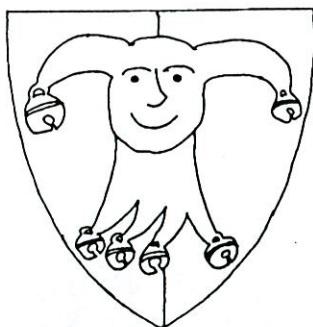

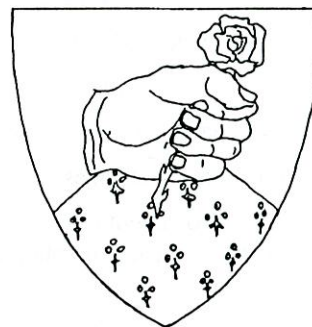

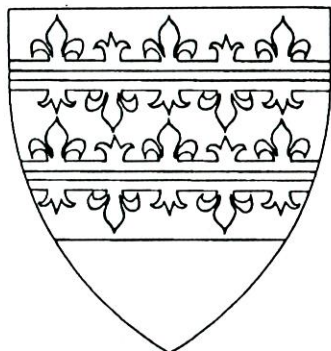

Permitted name changes :Important elements are: language; sound, Language of name is given as German

Permitted device changes : Important elements of the design are: charges, colours.

Crux Commentary: Hanks and Hodges is not a highly respected reference in the college, and unfortunately the Crux library is light on Germanic name books. However, the name sounds reasonable to me. The Tangermünde component is well documented. The device is in good order and free of conflict, though I'm not sure what the college will make of the cloved lemons. Then again, if the lady goes berserk and starts gnawing the top of her shield, at least she'll have fresh breath...

Recommendation: Pass name and device to Vesper.

Consulting herald: Pedair na Claune Bige.
